

Abbie BARBIR

Co-founder, Accountable Digital Identity Association (ADIA)

Abbie Barbir is a co-founder of Accountable Digital Identity Association (ADIA). He serves as a Security Advisor in the areas of identity management, mobile devices and authentication at Aetna Global Information Security. Barbir has extensive experience in identity and access management. He has worked with many standard organizations on developing next generation authentication technologies. Currently he represents Aetna on the FIDO Board of Directors. Barbir holds a Ph.D. in computer engineering from Louisiana State University. In his more than 25 years in security industry, he has been a Professor of Computer Science, an Application Developer, Data Compression and Encryption Inventor, Security Architect, Author and Inventor of numerous security algorithms.